Chapter 1 by emily farrell

A lean, female snake person exited the ship. She held a stun ray in her claws, while her green, scaly hair flowed down her back. Her attire was only a simple, brown chest covering and loin cloth. She had no legs, so she slithered down the ramp, her body moving fluidly like water. With her claws, she was able to slice a tree in half, and her venom was powerful enough to put a full grown elephant in a coma. As she moved, her claws would twitch slightly and her eyes moved everywhere, giving her a manner of cautionary and jittery, yet confident. Her name was Viper. Her skin was green and scaly, her eyes glowing yellow like lampposts in the night. She was 16 years old, but the way she acted and held herself made her seem older. She smirked at the other two people in the spaceport. " I figured I'd run into you guys," she said with disdain. " Only you would be confident enough to come after me. Viper stopped at the end of the ramp and narrowed her eyes at the two female before her. They were short compared to Viper, but what they lacked in height, they made up for in muscle. Both girls were dressed in a uniform that instantly identified them as officers of the intergalactic federation star police force. Viper turned in the direction of the girl in front. " Hello Tenja." she siad with a smirk. Long time no see. How longs it been? 5,6 years now?" The girl stepped forward, her purple eyes flickering from Viper to her pistol. "12 actually.' she said with an air of unhappiness. Viper acted shocked which prompted anger in Tenja. Cut the act Viper' she yelled. ' Your under arrest for stealing the Sajeanrn stone and for crimes against the galaxy. In the name of the Galactic Federation-" Viper cut Tenja off as she started to laugh. She glared at Tenja with a look that would send even the most trained of officers running. " Your clueless, aren't you,' she snarled. ' I don't answer to you precocious federation anymore.
